	General comments: Theatres can also be a major tourist attraction, and policies to promote tourist facilities and the growth of a tourist industry can support the inclusion of theatre use. A festival or summer season may be a crucial draw and bring major economic advantage to a town or city, but this will only be possible if suitable venues are available. A policy to promote theatre use as part of a relatively small development may make a strong contribution to the character of a town and enhance the experience of visiting the town as a tourist.

Gen com	eral ments:	P.63 You may also find it useful to look at the GVA per head in tourism and the GVA contribution from tourism to understand better its contribution to the economy of the districts. More importantly you need to consider how the economic strategy for the districts, subregion and region are proposing to deal with tourism and therefore what is necessary in spatial terms to implement this. P.64 3rd bullet from bottom of page: Can an evening cafe culture be achieved without the need for patio heaters? If so, then you could possibly exploit this positively and use it as an USP in Britain. If not, then you may want to consider whether this fits with your aspirations indicated in your climate change theme?
